

Dear Mr. Mayor,

May 15, 2009

I want to make Chicago a better place by building more homes for the homeless.

The city wouldn't have anybody lying on a bench or sitting next to a corner if we just build: building, condos, or houses.

People would build homes for the homeless, create nice things around the homes, get homeless warm and safe, pay just about 100 dollars for every home, and you won't see anyone on the corners of buildings.

Mr. Mayor please choose my idea and you won't see anyone on the corners of buildings.

Sincerely Yours,
