

Dear Mr. Mayor,

May 14, 2009

I want Chicago to have more active and fun things to do. You can start by building more amusement parks.

If the city builds more amusement parks kids could have something to do and they wouldn't be in trouble. The amusement parks would also be good because people would have more jobs. And friends and family could spend more time together. And people who work there could make more money.

I hope you accept my idea.

Sincerely yours,
