Dear Mayor Daley,

I have an idea how to make Chicago a better place. We could use solar panels. We could put them on cars, houses, and stores. This is a great idea because it will change Chicago by having more energy and we won't need anymore gas because now we have solar cars. It will cost money to buy the solar panels so the city can use some of the tax money to help start buying solar panels. Also it will take a long time because we need alot of energy to go everywhere. I learned from a book how a house has solar panels all over a house and has enough energy for the whole family. It will make Chicago a better place by having less pollution, a safer environment, and more energy that helps earth live longer.
